

Is it ok to edit config files in the...

Vincent Storm 104 posts since

Dec 14, 2003

I am switching authentication for our enterprise version TC and rather than shut the Service off I wanted start editing the relevant files. So my main question is will editing the file in TC_DATA_DIR/config cause any problems on the server while it's running.

Tags: ldap, teamcity

Pavel Sher 2,148 posts since

Mar 6, 2008 1. Re: Is it ok to edit config files in the data dir while TeamCity is running? Dec 3, 2008 10:46 PM

No, it should not cause problems, TeamCity watches for changes in configuration files and reloads them if change is detected. You may experience temporary slowdown while server loads configuration.

--

Pavel Sher