Hi guys,

After installing TeamCity 5 I saw that it's now possible to integrate with issue trackers.

The list of supported issue trackers is now: Jira, Bugzilla and YouTrack.

I would like to develop a plugin for FogBugz support.

Any documentation about that?

Hi The-MeLLeR,

Unfortunately, the documentation about it isn't ready yet, also we want to publish the common implementation part into open-api. But for now you can start with the following interfaces:

`SIssueProvider` - represents a single provider (connection) to the issue tracker, extends `IssueProvider`;

`IssueProviderFactory` - a factory for creating providers;

All interfaces are in `jetbrains.buildServer.issueTracker` package. You may need to implement several more optional interfaces, but these are main.

A brief explanation can be found in the javadoc to these interfaces.

As for the UI part, you need to add a special JSP: <plugin>/admin/editIssueProvider.jsp, which will be loaded on admin page for creating/editing providers.

Basically that's all.

I am very interested in any progress made on this plugin, and would be happy to help develop... eagerly awaiting API docs.

Hi Dan,

The doc is almost ready. But it's likely that the common code for Issue Tracker plugins will be put into open-api only in 5.1. So you'll need to wait for 5.1 EAP (expected in January).

But if that's really urgent for you I can upload a pre-version of the doc and the sources.

TeamCity 5 - Issue tracker plugin

Thanks, Maxim

OK, thanks.

I'll post in this thread, when everything is ready (if won't forget =).

Happy holidays for you too!

Dan,

TeamCity 5 - Issue tracker plugin

The doc will probably be published together with open-sourcing some plugin, see/watch TW-9103.
