

How to set the file cache settings of...

Jamal Bengeloun 10 posts since

Nov 16, 2009

Let me explain. Suppose I am running a PHP web application on localhost, if I open the logs in Storm, they are not updated in the IDE, however if I open them with another text editor I see the updates as they are made by the server.

It seems that if another process updated a file that Storm has opened, Storm does not see the changes. Is there anyway to change that (maybe there is a timer parameter to change in the settings)?

Is it specific to Storm (I also bought RubyMine but did not notice this behaviour) or to all the IDEA derivatives?

Alexey Gopachenko 1,294 posts since

Aug 22, 2002 1. Re: How to set the file cache settings of the IDE? Mar 17, 2010 6:36 PM

Your OS, and are there any symlinks in log path?

Jamal Bengeloun 10 posts since

Nov 16, 2009 2. Re: How to set the file cache settings of the IDE? Mar 18, 2010 5:46 PM

Hello Alexey,

The OS is Windows XP SP3 32bits and there are no symlinks in the log path. It also happens if I open a file with Storm, overwrite the file from FTP (outside of Storm); Storm still displays the stale version and other programs the new one.

Alexey Gopachenko 1,294 posts since

Aug 22, 2002 3. Re: How to set the file cache settings of the IDE? Mar 19, 2010 9:08 PM

How to set the file cache settings of...

FTP? looks like I can't understand about what caches you are talking about.

Please describe your project setup in full details. Include step-by-step details explicit expected and actual behavior description. Screenshots also can be helpful.

Jamal Bengeloun 10 posts since

Nov 16, 2009 4. Re: How to set the file cache settings of the IDE? Mar 22, 2010 5:01 PM

Hello Alexey,

The behaviour I get is as Kirill described. A file that is opened in Web IDE and modified by an external program (a log file, a file overwritten by FTP or a file opened with a different editor).

I'll try to post a reproducible way to get the same behaviour everytime.

Kirill Safonov 122 posts since

Dec 30, 2008 5. Re: How to set the file cache settings of the IDE? Mar 20, 2010 1:28 AM

Hello Jamal,

Let me guess: are you talking that external changes to the project files (made by the program other than Web IDE) do not appear in IDE? Please check you have 'Synchronize files on frame activation' option enabled at File | Settings | General pane. You may also try manual sync using 'Synchronize' action at the toolbar.

Regards,

Kirill

How to set the file cache settings of...

Jamal Bengeloun 10 posts since

Nov 16, 2009 6. Re: How to set the file cache settings of the IDE? Mar 22, 2010 5:04 PM

Hello Kirill,

Exactly! The settings are okay. I'll learn to use synchronize more often 😊

Regards,

Jamal